Aviit launches eMan™ Technical Publications Management JetDirect Aviation

Lower costs, greater efficiency, streamlined access, increased safety

AviIT, Inc. a leading provider of specialist aviation software solutions is pleased to announce that JetDirect Aviation, Inc. has launched AviIT's "eMan" technical publication management solution. The eMan solution provides easy access to all aircraft technical publications, OEM manuals and websites from a single centralized location, substantially improving operational efficiency for all users. eMan also provides a comprehensive set of library management tools that reduces administrative and IT workload as well as ensuring complete version control of all aircraft maintenance documents.

The implementation of eMan for JetDirect has directly reduced maintenance costs by eliminating unnecessary duplication of information and ensures all users have access to only the current revision of any technical publication, manual, service bulletin, or other electronic file from a single-centralized location.

"We are already realizing the organizational and economic benefits of eMan. The entire maintenance organization now relies on eMan to provide streamlined access to all maintenance publications. Our subscription costs are a fraction of what they were before we implemented eMan. This eMan solution plays an integral role in Jet Directs ongoing efforts to lower the costs associated with maintaining aircraft in today's challenging market."

Thomas Mealie, Senior Vice President of Maintenance, JetDirect Aviation, Inc.

"We are pleased that JetDirect is fully exploiting the features of the eMan solution which is already realizing a positive impact on overall efficiency and helping to substantially reduce costs. We look forward to working with Jet Direct to offer further innovative solutions during the support phase".

Vince Doherty, Vice-President of AviIT

"The launch of the eMan solution for JetDirect shows once again, that AviIT's proven products and services are cost-effective and practical solutions to the challenges aviation maintenance departments face today"

David Brown, CEO of AviIT.
